With over forty years of experience in successfully rehabilitating people with disabilities, ALEH has, in the past five years, established the first-ever rehabilitation hospital in the south of Israel. This facility has significantly improved care for Negev residents requiring inpatient rehabilitation following serious illnesses, accidents, or terror attacks. By implementing revolutionary rehabilitation techniques, employing international experts to train the medical staff, and offering unique services in Israel, such as an Oncological Rehabilitation Clinic as well as support groups, ALEH helps rehabilitation patients successfully reintegrate into their communities.

The Reality

Even before the war between Israel and Hamas erupted on October 7, Israel faced a significant shortage of rehabilitation beds. The country was already trailing behind other OECD nations in terms of available space for patients in rehabilitation hospitals and centers. While the OECD average for rehabilitation beds is 0.5 per 1,000 people, Israel has only 0.3, which is 60 percent of the average. Currently, the rehabilitation facilities are lacking approximately 500 beds, and at least 100 more rehabilitation doctors are needed over the next five years.

The Need

According to the Department of Rehabilitation at the Ministry of Defense, since the Swords of Iron War, there has been an average of 60 new injuries per day, totaling 8,600 wounded, most of whom are reservists. As the war continues, the demand for rehabilitation services and skilled medical staff will grow.
